

“It Pays to Advertise in the Valley Chronicle”

as a professional web developer, I rely on the community to target my customer base. When I think of advertising, I think of a community based publication. My web development company has been advertising in The Valley Chronicle since its conception. My business lives and works in my community and so does the Valley Chronicle, that’s why I put my advertising dollars with them. The professional web developer that not only gets you online, but gets you seen.
